First Aid Stations:

- Equestrian Saddlery Office
- Farm Office
- Viewing Pavilion
- Stable Block
- Dining Hall (Also contains a burn unit station)
- Lounge Room

Please note if first aid supplies are used from Stockland Lovell stations, please notify a member of staff

The instructor / organiser is responsible for carrying a first aid kit onto the Cross Country course whilst using the facilities.

The emergency contact detailed signs are displayed throughout Stockland Lovell's site in case of an emergency.

- Should an instructor or main organiser have any doubt about the safety of a rider or horse because of faulty tack / equipment then the instructor or organiser must refuse that person to take part & report back to Stockland Lovell team if necessary.
- Whilst every effort will have been made by Stockland Lovell to ensure that equipment/ site / fences are in good order, it is the responsibility of the instructor, main organiser or rider to visually check the obstacle or fence before proceeding.
If at all concerned for safety reasons, do not proceed & notify the problem to a Stockland Lovell member of staff immediately or, alternatively, the session should not begin until the situation has been resolved. (This includes any defects or breakages must be reported.)
- Apart from the Instructor's vehicle which must display an authorisation notice obtained from the Office, no cars or motorised vehicles are to be taken onto the Cross Country Course. If there is a need for other vehicles to go onto the course then they should apply to the Office for an authorisation notice.

Tack Rooms

- A designated member of camp or organiser to be responsible for the tack room keys whilst during camp. Upon departure please return to a Stockland Lovell member of staff. Stockland Lovell are not responsible for any damage, loss or theft.
- Please note horse feed, not to be kept in the tack room but in designated storage stables.

Lorry Park

- Please park close to the arena and away from farm buildings to avoid farm traffic.
- Please be aware all vehicles & trailers are left at the owners risk. Stockland Lovell are not responsible for any damage, loss or theft.

Accommodation Courtyard
